

PUBLIC LECTURE ON 'ENGAGING WITH SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS: PROSPECTS AND CHALLENGES FOR SOCIAL WORK PRACTICE'

Monday, 16 September 2019

Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai

Profile of the Speaker – Prof. Annamaria Campanini, PhD

Prof. Annamaria Campanini, a social worker and a family therapist, is a Professor in Social Work at Milano Bicocca University in Milan, Italy. She is the elected President of International Association of Schools of Social Work (IASSW) in 2016. She was the coordinator of the Thematic network EUSW-European Social Work and President of EASSW.

Prof. Campanini has taught in many countries in the world (especially Europe and China); has served as an international examiner for MA and PHD programs, as well as curriculum development expert in Portugal and for European ESCO projects. She has authored many publications in several languages, and she serves as an editorial board member of many international social work journals. Social work education at international level is, at present, her area of research and interest.

About the Public Lecture

The public lecture will be focussing on social work education and how it can contribute to the sustainable development goals (SDGs). This will encompass various aspects. Prof. Campanini will discuss the need of internationalising social work education, without countering the indigenisation process. The Fritiof Capra approach to SDGs and Earth charter and his proposal of a Systems perspective will form the next part of the lecture. The final part of the lecture will highlight the eco-critical approach and the new process for creating the Global Agenda 2020/2030.
